

Washington University Law

Center for Interdisciplinary Studies

WORK, FAMILIES, AND PUBLIC POLICY

A Biweekly Brown Bag Seminar Series

Topics Relating to Labor, Households, Health Care, Law, and Social Welfare

FALL 2009

- September 21: Shelly Lundberg, University of Washington, "Personality and Marital Surplus."
- October 5: Laurence Kotlikoff, Boston University, "Should Economists Start Practicing Economics?"
- October 19: David Neumark, University of California, Irvine, "Neighbors and Co-Workers: The Importance of Residential Labor Market Networks"
- November 2: Robert A. Pollak, Washington University, "The Proximity of Adult Children to their Parents: Description and Correlates."
- November 16: James Heckman, University of Chicago, "Understanding the Sources of and Solutions to Human Inequality." This talk will be held in Anheuser-Busch Hall, Bryan Cave Moot Courtroom at noon.
- November 30: Barton Hamilton, Washington University, "AIDS and the Economics of Risky Behavior."

Faculty members and graduate students from Washington University, the University of Missouri, St. Louis University, and other area universities, are invited to participate.

Time: 12:00 to 1:00 PM, with discussion extending to 1:30 p.m., for those interested.

Place: Seigle Hall, Room 348, at Washington University.

For more information, contact:

Bob Pollak, at (314) 935-4918, email: pollak@wustl.edu or

Michael Sherraden, at (314) 935-6691, email: sherrad@wustl.edu

To download papers go online to: <http://www.olin.wustl.edu/links/> and click on the Academic Seminars link on the lower right hand side.

Sponsored by the Olin Business School, the George Warren Brown School of Social Work, the Center for Social Development, the Center for Interdisciplinary Studies at the School of Law, the Center for Health Policy, the Department of Economics, and the College of Arts and Sciences.

Room courtesy of the Economics Department.

Coffee and soft drinks will be provided.